

Foreign aid, the act of a country funding and distributing necessities to other countries (Williams), has an elaborate history that continues today. To better understand foreign aid, one must look at the history and the three main types: economic, military, and emergency humanitarian.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is a multinational coalition charged with preserving the security of the Euro-Atlantic region and the management of crises within the jurisdiction of the alliance. The organization's lexicon of terms, historical background, modern-day engagements in world events are subtopics in NATO's conceptual examination.

Birth control is "a prevention of pregnancy by interfering with the normal process of ovulation, fertilization, and implantation" (Tuteur et al.). In order to better understand the topic of birth control, one must know the history of birth control, the types of birth control offered, and the different types of court cases that have impacted the use and distribution of birth control in the United States

School dress codes are the school district's definition of what their students can and cannot wear based on what the school believes is appropriate. By learning the main definitions of dress codes, the history, and issues today, one can gain more knowledge of this popular subject.